The building that now houses Little Black was originally constructed in 1856 as a private residence. In 1902, the Harrisonburg YMCA purchased the building and converted it into a gymnasium and athletic facility. The facility was named "Little Black" in honor of Dr. William H. Black, a prominent local physician and YMCA supporter.

Little Black quickly became a popular destination for young athletes in Harrisonburg and the surrounding area. The facility offered a variety of sports programs, including basketball, volleyball, track and field, and swimming. Little Black also hosted a number of community events, such as dances, concerts, and lectures.

In the early 1960s, Little Black underwent a major renovation. The renovation included the addition of a new swimming pool, a weight room, and a gymnasium. The renovation also included the creation of a new youth development program, which provided after-school programs and summer camps for children from low-income families.

The youth development program at Little Black has been a vital part of the community for over 50 years. The program provides a safe and supportive environment for children to learn and grow. The program also offers a variety of activities, such as tutoring, mentoring, and recreation.

Little Black For Athletes is more than just a historic landmark. It is a vibrant community center that provides a wide range of programs and services to the Harrisonburg community. Little Black is a place where young athletes can train and compete, where children can learn and grow, and where the community can come together.
